Through case studies, key tools for sustainable product development will be analysed, covering aspects such as the circular economy, green consumption, eco-design and eco-label communication.

In the field of business in Europe, cultural differences between European countries will be studied, exploring the particularities of the regions of the North, the Mediterranean and the new Eastern Europe. Decision-making, communication strategies and team management will be analysed in each area, providing a comprehensive understanding of how business culture varies in the dynamic European landscape.
